Frosh Dance Is Tomorrow Night

The theme for the freshman class stag dance to be held Saturday, March 14, is St. Patrick's Day, with the decorations to be in green and white. The dance is to be held at the Salinas Recreation Center, from 8:30 to 12:30, with emphasis on the attendance of prospective Hartnell students, the Salinas high school seniors. Student body cards from both the high school and college will be honored with the price of admission for student body card holders 50 cents and noncard holders, 75 cents.

Karol Klauer is general chairman in charge of all arrangements, Doris Simon is in charge of publicity; Esther Williams is in charge of the decorations; Winkie Gularte is in charge of the records; and Richard Eppey is in charge of the finances.

Blood Derby Hits 79 Pints Here

Last Friday, Hartnell students gave blood in an effort to outdo Monterey, with the fond hope of getting the Blood Donor Trophy from Monterey, which was won last year by the "fish area school. Hartnell last year was badly out-blooded by Monterey, which totaled about 120 pints. Hartnell enthusiasm over the blood donor drive netted 79 pints Tuesday, with some students going to a neighboring blood bank this week to give blood to add to the Hartnell total.

No conclusive results were available at presstime regarding the Monterey total; therefore, the winner of the Blood Derby cannot be announced until the "pints per student" score is figured out. The winner is figured on the basis of the number of students enrolled divided by the pints donated.

Incomplete Makeups Due

All incompletes from last semester (fall) must be made up by today, March 13, the end of the first six weeks of the present semester. All incompletes not made up will turn into an "F." The office staff will bring the records up to date and figure out grade point averages, after the deadline today.

French Farce Is Presented Again Tonight

A very enthusiastic audience greeted last night's opening performance of the Hartnell Players-Community Theater production of the sparkling French comedy, "The Miser," by Moliere.

The success of last night's performance provides hopes for a similarly enthusiastic crowd at the performance tonight and tomorrow night, at 8:15 p.m., in the Hartnell Little Theater.

The play itself is suitable for persons of all ages and tastes, combining comedy with excellent staging techniques and beautiful settings and costumes. The unique and interesting stage settings were emphasized by the use of flowing seventeenth century gowns and long wigs, producing an authentic effect.

Among the cast of last night's performance were Paul Edwards as the miser, Bill Garey as La Fleche, Paul Brown as Jacques, and Mary Ann Baldwin as Elise. This was the first of the community theater productions in which the cast

Lemos, Girdner On Trip Today

Today, Friday, March 13, President John B. Lemos and Mr. Jerry Girdner will take a trip over to Salinas Union High School to have a talk with the high school seniors.

These prospective Hartnell freshmen will be shown a movie depicting Hartnell life on campus and will have pointed out to them the advantages of a hometown college. "It is gratifying to note," stated Mr. Lemos, "how many students are swayed by this visit. Most of the seniors have had little contact with Hartnell and, consequently, many times pass up its opportunities for the excitement of other colleges in other towns."

This visit, made every year to S.U.H.S. by the college president and his associates, has greatly helped to acquaint the seniors with Hartnell and to inspire them to make the wisest possible step by not overlooking the great advantages of attending the college in their immediate area.

Karol Klauer New Commissioner Of Hart Rallies

Karol Klauer has been selected as the new commissioner of rallies and assemblies by the members of the Student Commission recently. She replaces Darlene Rust, who vacated the office, and will be the third person to hold the office this school year. It will be her duties to plan and arrange all rallies and assemblies during the remainder of the year.

A graduate of Salinas Union High School, Miss Klauer was very active in the extracurricular program there. In addition to her new office, she holds the office of secretary-treasurer of the freshman class and the position of art editor of the college yearbook, La Reata. She has also been very active on the social activities committee. She is an art major, and plans to attend Oakland Arts and Crafts School after completing her education at Hartnell.

Advisor Peavy Offers Air Ride

An interview on Thursday with Mr. Darwin Peavy, advisor to the Flying Club, brought forth from him this statement, "I will personally fly any student or faculty member around the Salinas Valley, but the flying time will have to be after school or on week ends."

The genial pilot went on to say that if students are interested to fly home to such cities as Santa Cruz or Watsonville, he "would take some students home this way."

In the Flying Club meeting of Thursday, Ray Bloyed was acting president in the absence of Chuck McDonald, who had been elected, but who is no longer in college.

The main reason for the club meeting was to plan spring activities and to show a movie. Listed among the spring activities will be an invitational flying meet here.

Bus Accident

Hartnell College students, riding home to Santa Cruz on Bus No. 29 last Wednesday, were delayed 30 minutes when the bus, driven by Kenneth Beecher, 22, of Santa Cruz, was involved in a slight accident about one-half mile north of Watsonville on Highway 1.

The crash occurred when a passing car was forced into the side of the bus at a point where the highway converges from four lanes to three lanes. No injuries were suffered in the sideswipe collision, and damages to both car and bus were minor. No citations were issued by the highway patrol who investigated the crash.

Last Day To Drop Classes

All students are reminded that today, Friday, March 13, is the last day in which it is possible to drop a class and still receive a grade of WP (Withdrawal Passing). After today, students dropping a class will receive a grade of WF (Withdrawal Failure).

THINKING IT OVER

By KEN VAN CLEAVE

Perhaps you students haven't started thinking in terms of next year yet, but it is necessary for you to do just that. In case you're in the dark, I am referring to the subject of the election of your student body officers for 1953-54. The time for the nomination and election of these officers is approaching rapidly, and soon petitions will be circulating over the campus.

It is up to you, the student, to choose wisely. The officers you elect will serve you and protect your interests throughout the college year. Therefore, it is necessary that the people whom you elect to office be familiar with all phases of the college life. In order to become familiar with these aspects, anyone who is interested in serving as a student body officer next year should attend the various meetings of the Interclub Council and especially the Student Commission meetings on Mondays at noon.

In order to achieve and maintain the high standards of Hartnell College, it is most important that you have capable and reliable officers to serve you. This year there has been little opportunity for freshmen to participate in these governing activities, but now the opportunity is here. Let's start looking for capable people to represent us next year; and remember, they will represent us not only in this college, but in the community, as well as with the other schools.

Let's all think this over!

New A&M Class On Fertilizer

One of the newest courses in the agriculture department is that of Fertilizers and Fertilizer Practices.

Although the course is designed primarily to teach application and production for the farmer, it can be of great value to the student who wishes to seek employment in the fertilizer industry. This multi-million dollar industry is one of the fastest growing businesses in the Salinas area, and therefore offers a wide field of employment.

Included in the course is laboratory time wherein experimental work in the field will be carried on with organic and commercial type inorganic fertilizers.

Coffee Machine Tried, Removed

The coffee machine installed in the cafeteria for a two-week trial was removed after the student body voted overwhelmingly against keeping it.

The machine was tried because of its popularity in various places around town; but when it came to a vote, the students decided that they preferred cafeteria coffee to the machine coffee even if the prices were the same.

The machine provided coffee either with or without sugar and cream, but many students felt that the paper cups added an undesirable taste to the coffee.

La Reatas Still On Sale

La Reata will celebrate its sixteenth year of existence this year. The first edition was put to press in 1936. To give some idea of its progress, Editors Rudy Sun and Pete Holm point out that the first edition had under 100 pictures in the entire book. The 1953 edition will show an array of more than 1,000 pictures. The 1936 annual averaged two pictures per page. This year's book will average 12 snaps per page.

The coeditors announced that the yearbook sales were moving at a snail's pace, and, if sales were not increased, the yearbook would be put up for downtown public sale.

Music Classes For Everyone Hope of Aslanian

"Someday I'd like to be able to say that every student that graduated from Hartnell College has taken at least one music course—either instrumental or vocal."

This is the ultimate dream of Mr. Vahé Aslanian, Hartnell's choir director, who shares this dream with Lorell McCann, long-time head of the Hartnell music department. Mr. Aslanian goes on further to say that, "The music courses are not designed just for those who desire a career in music but for those who enjoy music for an avocation or a hobby."

One course which is currently being taught by Mr. Aslanian is Beginning Piano, designed for those who have had little or no experience with the piano. An intermediate class will soon be starting for those who have had about three years of piano experience.

There is also an advanced class for those with five or six years of piano.

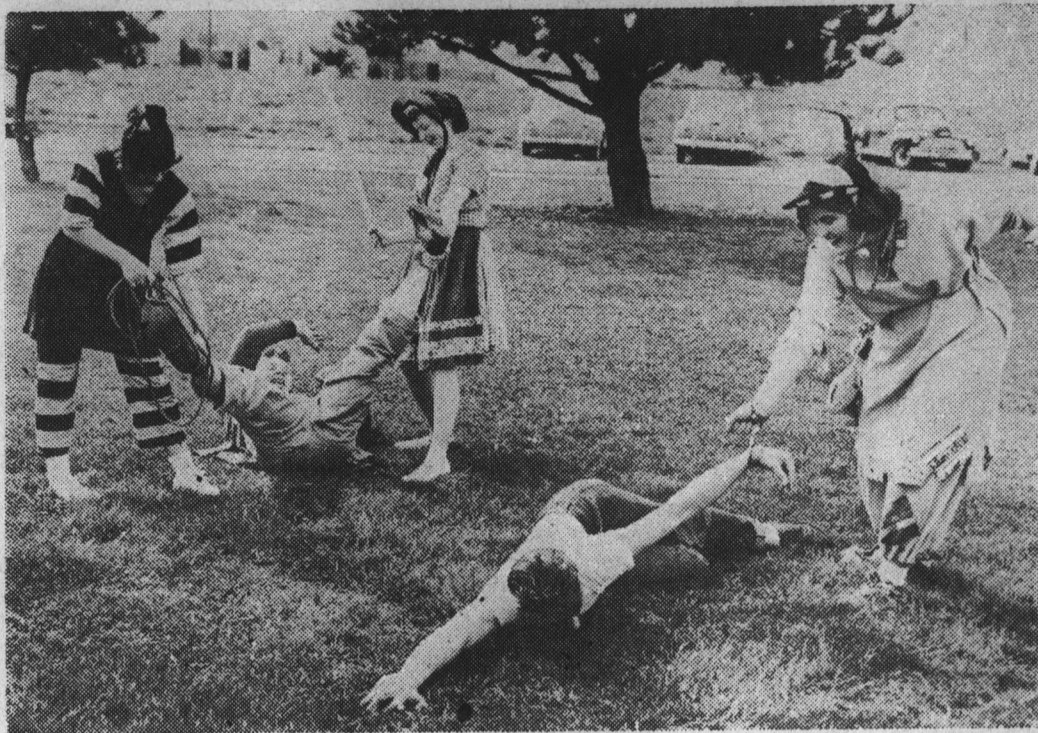

One choral group is the Hartnell choir which attempts one large religious work a year plus several smaller secular works. This year the choir will make a tour of all the high schools from Santa Cruz to King City. The other vocal group is the Madrigal Singers, which consists of usually 16 members who have had at least one semester of choir or are now in the choir. They work with madrigals from the 1500's to the 1600's with some work on modern compositions.

The music department also offers an excellent course in music history. Music appreciation is also offered with studies from operas to jazz. This subject is required for those who wish to go into elementary teaching. Mr. Aslanian states that, "Anyone can enjoy music, but in order to appreciate music, he must know its background."

A course in theory is also taught, stressing ear training, terminology, definition, and sight singing. Voice classes are offered to those who desire special individual training.

Someday, Mr. Aslanian hopes to have a choir with at least a hundred members.

Last Year's Chase Ended Thus — - And This Year?

Blood Donations Are Painless

A lot of talk has been floating around the plant these last few days regarding the pain encountered when giving a pint of blood. You don't usually go into hysteria over a nosebleed. Giving a pint of blood is somewhat like a bloody nose, only the nice thing about having the blood removed via your arm instead of your nose is that the supply can be shut off when the bottle is full.

Naturally, when you walk in to give blood, you become a little wary when you smell the alcohol and see all sorts of instruments around, but think of someone who is really scared—the poor kid in Korea, who hasn't got any of your blood to replace the blood running out of him. Compare the pain he has with an arm or leg blown off with the slight sting you feel just for an instant when you give that pint of blood!

Although the Hartnell-M.P.C. Blood Derby is over, the Red Cross Bloodmobile is in Salinas the first Monday of each month—it's not too late to give the blood that may save an American's life.

Hartnell Needs Dormitories

The need for dormitories at Hartnell has become a must. Students applying for admission to the college find it exceedingly difficult to locate quarters commensurate with their budget. This creates an undue hardship on the individual and causes many young persons to forego an education which, otherwise, he or she might have had.

Only yesterday, President Lemos pointed out that at the present time Hartnell has one small dormitory (if it might be called such) available, and quarters for only seven men. The real need, he said, is for two dormitories; one for men, one for women, and should accommodate at least fifty persons each.

The ideal setup would be for the college to build and operate the two dormitories on a nonprofit basis, whereby the student would be able to obtain housing at a nominal rate. This no doubt takes time; therefore, until the campus buildings become an actuality, one or two large homes could be utilized as dorms. Should some public spirited citizens of the Hartnell area have available for rental such

Evening Class Enrolls 25

Mr. Vincent Anselmo's evening engineering class, Review of Engineering Fundamentals, held every Thursday evening from 7 to 10, has an enrollment of about 25. The course is intended for practicing engineers, and is a refresher course in the fundamentals of engineering. It also fulfills the requirements for preparation for the State Professional Engineering Examination.

The class includes men from such faraway towns as Gilroy, Santa Cruz, Watsonville, Carmel, Monterey, and King City, and has several former graduates and alumni of Hartnell College.

Divisional topics covered in the course include the subjects of mechanics, the strength of materials, DC and AC electricity, and hydraulics.

Probation Notices

Probation notices were received by many students attending Hartnell College, reminding them of their shaky academic standing. Of the 635 students attending Hartnell last semester, the largest group on record for the last five years was on probationary standings. Of the 148 students who failed to maintain a "C" average, 52 students dropped out or failed to reregister.

The college has 85 students on probation at the present time. Breaking this classification down into smaller groups, 55 students are on probation, nine students are on strict probation, and 21 students are on a one-semester trial basis.

homes, they should get in touch with Hartnell College as soon as possible so that preparations can be gotten under way for the fall semester. If any student knows of such a home, or homes, please advise President Lemos, and he will take the problem from there.

Science Department Takes Trip

The science department of Hartnell sponsored a trip to San Francisco's Golden Gate Park last Thursday, March 5. Students from natural science, zoology, entomology, chemistry, and other science classes attended the educational outing. The trip was one of the annual spring excursions sponsored by the science department.

The group first visited the Steinhart Aquarium where they observed the fish of the Pacific region. The director of the aquarium guided a tour behind the scenes where the students were allowed to observe the water supply systems, the fish hospitals, and the large filter system and generators.

The students then split up and observed points of interest pertinent to the separate groups. The entomology group was allowed to observe a private laboratory which is the checking station for all insects coming in from the islands and the Orient.

Other students attended the Museum of Natural Science. The entire group also attended the planetarium, one of the best of its kind.

In charge of the all-day outing were Mr. Wilbert Robinson, Mr. William McCallum, and Mr. James Wilson.

Sadie Hawkins' Day Coming

Sadie Hawkins' Day will descend upon the Hartnell College campus Friday, March 27. Only two weeks from today Hartnell coeds will have the blood of their ancient Dogpatch kincestors boil to a dangerously passionate temperature. Come that day, Hartnell males will instinctively start running.

Climaxing a day on which anything can happen will be the dance in the Men's Gym, featuring the fine band, "The Ambassadors." The dance will be informal. At the dance, prizes will be given for the best caricatures of certain Dogpatchers, to be announced at a later date.

The day promises to be a full one, and Marryin' Sam is expected to be a busy man. In the forenoon, in conjunction with the traditional assembly (funereal type), will be the grueling race Young, innocent, unattached members of the male gender are warned to train well to escape the screaming, wild-eyed, hungry wimmen.

Associated Women Students, who are sponsoring the annual outing for the benefit of those neglected ones in their midst, have announced that Ken Van Cleave, president of the student body, consented, after some mild tortures, to proclaim the day Sadie Hawkins' Day. Atmosphere will be built up throughout the week preceding the sad day by Joyce Hodge, Iverne Henningson, Ann Young, Darlene Clizbe, Jeannine Craddock, and Babette Gianinni.

EDUCATION . . .

By J. R. INGRAM

Some of those theorists on education give us a pain, and we've just got to get some of these things off our chest. There is a big fight, you know, over teaching methods in the public schools. One group is always screaming that schools no longer teach "sound and enduring values." These men are annoyed, as we get it, because too many schools nowadays emphasize "life adjustment" courses. The life-adjustment people, for their part, sneer at the pure academic people for being highbrow and out of touch.

WHY must there be such a sharp argument? Our guess is that because the professional theorists in education get so involved in their concepts, they often lose sight of the human beings who are to be educated. Each faction of educators is trying to elbow the other off the stage. They act less like educators than the football coaches who want to win, and the devil take the kids. Surely education is blind if it merely teaches what Plato or Jefferson thought, and, if it does nothing to help youngsters cope with the problems of making a living and running a family. Everybody needs a dose of each kind of education. The only problem, as we see it, is to figure out the proper

Council Is Working On Carnival

April 18 will set the scene for the biggest Spring Carnival in the history of Hartnell. The proceeds from the carnival this year will go toward the hoped-for student union. In addition, it is hoped by the Interclub Council, sponsors of the affair, that public interest will be aroused in favor of the project.

Most of the participating groups are planning to donate 100 per cent of their profit to the building fund instead of the required 75 per cent donated in the past, according to general chairman, Lutz Graf zu Muenster.

The booths and club sponsors are as follows: Wishing Well and Ice cream, Alpha Gamma Sigma; Fortune Telling and Handwriting, Commission; Caricatures and Water Color Paintings, Alpha Delta Epsilon; Telegrams and Cascaroni, A.W.S.; Fish Pond, International Club; Beetle Race, Westminster Club; Coke Sale, Newman Club; Miniature Golf, I.V.C.F.; Basketball Throw, Block "H"; Throwing Darts at M.P.C. Catalogs, Panther Sentinel; Hawaiian Booth, Hawaiian Club; and Dart Throw, Alumni.

Mr. Muenster has announced that several people are responsible for certain phases of the carnival. They are Wally Lowry, decorations for the dance; Joyce Blasdell, music publicity; Jan Walker, general publicity; Shirley Sherman, posters; Herb Jaenicke, contacting outside clubs; Ramona Eris, dance band; and Ken Van Cleave, booth construction.

ratio in each case. Let the flagship educators do more work there.

That artificial line between "cultural" and "vocational" might disappear if educators would accept a constructive definition of the purpose of education, which could be this: EDUCATION SHOULD DEVELOP PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY. This means developing the capacity to think independently and to arrive at ideas of what's right and wrong. It also means gaining some ability to master the practical problems of living in today's world, of pulling one's own oar competently.

We lean to the idea which stresses the practical part, the part which concerns the pulling of one's own oar. But this idea tries to keep an eye on the whole ship, too. We also suggest that the "argufying" educators try this: Get your noses out of your concepts and look at the needs of the whole youngster. If this is done, we can take our ship into battle, from the human needs standpoint, and win the fight.

Veterans Receive Government Aid

Mr. Jerry Girdner, who is advisor for the Veterans' Administration, tries to help all students to whom the various laws apply. Miss Ada Bassi helps Mr. Girdner as she handles all the paper work involved regarding the vets' records. This includes also the sending of a monthly progress report to the Veterans' Administration in San Francisco. The monthly report serves as a basis for the students' pay each month.

The veterans come under three different public laws. Public Law 16 takes care of the disabled veterans. Public Law 346 deals with the World War II veterans, and Public Law 550 takes care of Korean veterans. Under Public Law 16 the college had one disabled veteran last semester, but there is no vet coming under it this semester. World War II veteran in college this semester, thus far, total 16 members, but the number of Korean vets is the largest of any student group coming here, with 23 members.

The representative last semester helping the vets with their problems was Mr. L. R. Kenefick from San Jose, who appeared at Hartnell when any of the vets had serious problems beyond the scope normally expected of the Hartnell staff members.

Veterans are able to go to school only so far as to complete their

OH, HAPPY DAY: The sun is shinin' — but Salinas Valley finally became the recipient of some precipitation. The cloud of gloom over the fair home of Hartnell College was replaced by a cheering cloud of rain water, which was first dispersed upon the parched earth in said region at about 11:30 Monday night.

More in the way of slight showers has been shed upon the valley this week to wash away the tears being shed by the farmers these 43 days. Inspiring? You bet (but look what it inspires!).

Leech of '53, a Hartnell man, Emil Yappert by name, is grumbling about the results of his efforts to draw blood from the citizens of Hartnell College. As this monarch of the weeklies goes to press, it is not known what amounts of the precious liquid are being donated at Monterey P.U.

Those who gave blood last Friday can well feel that they have done their country a service. Those who did not give blood, if capable of donating, should plan to do so next time. After all, there are a number of draft eligibles walking through the halls of Hartnell who might need a few pints (of the blood) when in Korea next year.

As We See It

By DICK JOHNSON

Interclub Council at Hartnell College has taken the initiative in many activities this year. It sponsored Homecoming and Rose Bowl Dance, and is now planning the annual Spring Carnival.

However, this column has a criticism to register. During the school year of 1952, '53 Interclub Council has failed miserably in one of its most essential duties as stated in its constitution, namely, "taking charge of the social calendar concerning club activities."

It is a duty of the Interclub Council to enter all dates of events scheduled on the official calendar, which is placed on the bulletin board in the office of the registrar at Hartnell. Few events, for which dates are reserved, are placed on the calendar; and many important events never do reach their place on the calendar.

It is fortunate that Panther Sentinel, as it has done in past years, has not had to rely on the social calendar to check dates and coming events. If this were the case this year, from looking at the calendar in its present state, there would be no news of any sports, spring carnival, "The Miser," and many other vital phases of school life.

Many individuals involved in coordinating school activities, publicity, and scheduling coming activities have expressed displeasure at the neglect of the calendar. For these groups, or individuals, and for the good of the Council itself, a good time to start taking better care of the calendar is today.

Junior Rose Bowl Dealt Body Blow

Rube Samuelson's recent column in the San Francisco Chronicle confirmed a suspicion which many people around here have been talking about. It seems that the California Junior College Association, composed of representatives from each junior college in the state, and who control all athletic activities in junior college circles, recently voted to discontinue their support of the annual Junior Rose Bowl game. Since Hartnell played in last year's event, naturally everyone hereabouts is concerned with this decision. There are three important developments of the Association's action which deserve comment.

First, instead of the intersectional playoff which has become customary, a regional postseason game including teams only from California will probably be adopted. This game will pit the champion of the four northern conferences against the representative from the four southern leagues. Secondly, the Pasadena Junior Chamber of Commerce, which has sponsored the affair since its inception, will have to hunt for some other way to gain publicity and money, for it will have nothing to do with the new arrangement. However, the Pasadena group WILL sponsor this year's (1953) classic because the contract has already been signed by all parties concerned. Beginning in 1954, the final game will alternate between L.A.'s Coliseum and San Francisco's Kezar Stadium. Thirdly, by staging all playoff games, the junior college association will finance their ath-

Alums Return And Defeat Harts 8-4

In regard to Saturday afternoon's Hartnell-Alumni ball game, Coach Jess Regli made this statement: "The main reason for the downfall of Hartnell in this game was found in the error department." Hartnell was also on the short end of the hitting department, having been out-hit, 13-9, with the Alumni garnering an 8-4 win for the p.m. effort.

The spectators who viewed this contest on Saturday saw the lead change hands until the seventh inning, when the alums took it from there. The Panthers went ahead in the fifth on one run and four hits, one being a double by Tony Teresa. The score at the end of the fifth inning was 4-3, Hartnell.

The seventh inning saw the Alumni get red hot for three tallies before the tide was stemmed. These three runs, along with two more in the ninth, rounded out the scoring for the clubs.

As Regli correctly put it, the errors cost the game for the home club. They combined to commit ten errors, whereas the oldsters were guilty of only three miscues.

Wayne Crook started the contest for the winners for five innings, with the Panthers' four runs coming off his pitching; then Al Navarroli took over and allowed only one bingle during the remaining part of the contest.

The star of the contest for the alumni was Dale Swire, who hit safely four times in five trips to letic administration in the Golden State.

Thirty-seven voted to abandon the affair, and sixteen wanted to continue; so if Hartnell footballers again wish to smell some roses the old axiom "now or never again" is applicable.

Chuck Dillard Shuts Out Gonzales With No Hits, 7-0

Southpaw Chuck Dillard threw quite a ball game against the Gonzales High School Spartans last Friday afternoon at the local diamond. At the conclusion of the seven-inning contest, the visitors found themselves on the short end of the 7-0 score. Overshadowing the shutout was the fact that Dillard officially faced only 21 batters and retired 17 via the strikeout route as he allowed absolutely no hits. A no-hit shutout is extremely rare in baseball, providing the pitcher with anecdote material for years to come.

The Harts had a 2-0 lead entering the fifth inning during which they erupted suddenly for four runs on as many base knocks. Completing the day's scoring was a lone tally in the home half of the sixth.

Pacing the winners' hitting parade was third sacker Glenn Moore with three blows, including a double and two singles. Tex Grier was accredited with a home run and a single as was centerfielder Tony Teresa.

Defensively, the Panthers were guilty of only one miscue as compared with four on the part of the Spartans. However, the Gonzales coach said that his club had had little practice and only one organized infield drill.

Dillard's hurling was easily the outstanding factor in the contest. Should he be able to throw nearly so effectively in the Harts' remaining games, Coach Regli should have a team close to the top come season's end.

Hartnell's box score was:

Player	AB	R	H
Grier	3	1	2
Matsuoki	0	1	0
Moore	4	1	3

Hartnell Golf Team Comes in Second

Two golfers from Hartnell, Lien and Eppley by name, were the only men able to earn points as Stanford walked away with a 25 to 1 1/2 point victory in their dual golf match last Saturday on the apparently rugged Stanford course.

Fort Ord Again Beats Panthers

In a game that was nearly called off because of the threatening weather last Tuesday the Fort Ord Braves played a return engagement on the Hartnell diamond, winning by a score of 19-0.

The visiting aggregation had three big innings, scoring six runs in the second, six more in the eighth, and four in the ninth. The Panthers, meanwhile, were able to solve the pitching of Mr. Ludwig only to the tune of three hits. Richard Adams, Bill Smith, and Tex Grier were the only home club men who got on base via a base hit.

In a game such as this one there is really not very much that can be said. The Panthers were out-classed and that is all there was to it.

The Hartnell box score follows:

Player	AB	R	H

the plate. In the hitting for Hartnell, Tony Teresa hit safely three times in four trips to the plate. Coach Jess Regli concluded by saying: "This year's team in conference play will be a most potent team if everyone who is out now stays out."
